Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

1. Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Schneider (6,220,477).
2. Schneider discloses a handle for use with cookware (Figures 8-12) with an attachment member (138), the handle (135) pivotably mounted about a horizontal axis (142) and the handle moves between a lifting position transverse to the cookware and a stored position approximately parallel to the wall of the cookware. The handle has a catch including a detent (155) with an elastic member (195) engaging the mount through recesses in the handle (158) and the mount (144), and the handle is released through pressure applied to the handle at pressure points (179).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 4, 7, 9, 12, 14 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Schneider in view of Cheng (6,419,107).

5. Regarding claims 4, 7, 9, 12 and 14, Schneider discloses cookware (Figures 8-12) with an attachment member (138), a handle (135) pivotably mounted about a horizontal axis (142) and the handle moves between a lifting position transverse to the cookware and a stored position approximately parallel to the wall of the cookware. The handle has a catch for holding the handle in at least two positions including a detent (155) with an elastic member (165) engaging the mount through recesses in the handle and the mount, and the handle is released through pressure applied to the handle at pressure points (179). Schneider does not teach the use of a lid with the cookware base. Cheng discloses cookware with a lid (2) for containing the heat and the contents in the cookware. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have incorporated the use of a lid as disclosed by Cheng in the cookware disclosed by Schneider to provide a means for containing the heat and the contents in the cookware.

6. Regarding claim 15, Schneider discloses an elastically resilient member that is substantially U-shaped on one side of the pivot point (175) with two legs that include detents (155).

Allowable Subject Matter

7. Claims 5, 6, 10, 11 and 16-20 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

8. Applicant's arguments filed October 19, 2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant argues that Schneider does not teach the catch mechanism with an elastically resilient member having a detent for engaging a recess positioned with the handle. In response, Schneider discloses an elastically resilient member (195) with a detent (155) and the detent engages a recess positioned with the handle (158) as well a recess in the mount (144). Schneider meets the limitations as recited in the claims.
